

Montgomery County, Alabama

Index of Enslaved People

The index below, the compilation of which began in 2017 by Montgomery County Archives (MCA) staff, represents a partial index of the names, ages, genders, and owners of enslaved people in Montgomery County, Alabama. By no means comprehensive, this index constitutes an effort to identify those individuals enslaved in Montgomery County, Alabama. The MCA staff located the data listed below by reviewing county estate files prior to 1865.*

Please note that throughout the index researchers will find the following symbol [?]. This marking signifies that the archivist could not discern the name in question, or provided their best guess at the spelling of the name. While many of the names found in the estate files are clearly legible, nineteenth century spelling and cursive script varies in quality. In some cases it became impossible to read names. On a related data note, Montgomery County estate files vary in the amount of information they provide about enslaved people. In most cases the estate files will provide the name and sex of an enslaved person. However, the estate files less frequently provide the ages of enslaved people.

On a metadata related note, the index contains a data field titled “Year of Record”. The information contained in this field refers to the date of the document in which archives staff first found the name of the enslaved person in question. Throughout the course of the project MCA staff realized that as the estates of deceased slave owners in Montgomery County went through the settlement process, enslaved people’s names were repeated on documents throughout an estate file.

Researchers can find the estate files from which the MCA staff found the names of enslaved people at the Montgomery County Archives.

*Simply put, when a person dies they leave behind property and possessions, as well as in some cases, debt. To settle outstanding debts and distribute property among the deceased’s heirs, a process is initiated in probate court. This process generates a file that contains, among other things, a list of real property. During slavery, deceased slave owners’ estate files often listed enslaved people among lists of real property.
